THE WAVERY

From our stools and goblets to the centrepiece waves that frame our bar, The Wavery is a design project which speaks to the senses. Designed by award-winning French architect, Arthur Mamou-Mani, and 3D printed using planet-friendly PLA bioplastics at Arthur's FabPub circular factory in Hackney, it's a truly stunning addition to 3'6.

ABOUT OUR NAME

In the 1930s, customers on this floor could ask Fortnum's to arrange a cocktail party at home for three shillings and six pence per guest – 3'6, as it was written. Inspired by that convivial spirit, we thought it made the perfect name.

A celebration of exceptional food photography and visual storytelling from around the world, we're delighted to be showcasing a selection of images from the 2026 World Food Photography Awards, sponsored by Tenderstem® Bimi® Broccolini – including the winning image in both the Overall competition and the Fortnum's-sponsored 'At The Table' category, 'A Woman Eats in the Canteen of the Soviet-era Sanatorium' by British photographer Jo Kearney. Discover more shortlisted photographs across our 3rd Floor and here at 3'6, all chosen by the esteemed panel of judges, which this year included legendary photographer, David Loftus, and Fortnum's CEO, Tom Athron.
